

Special oral examination (Master's course)

October 18, 2023

Department of Nuclear Engineering and Management

- The department will conduct a special oral examination in the summer of 2024 for master's course applicants who have been judged to have extremely excellent academic ability through applicant screening and whose first choice is this department.
 - Special oral examination will be conducted only to those who would like to take it.
 - In special oral examination, questions will be asked to evaluate mathematical ability, etc. The exam will be conducted face-to-face on campus.
 - Candidates selected through special oral examination will be exempted from written examination in regular admission.
 - Candidates who are not selected through applicant screening or special oral examination can take written and oral examinations in regular admission.
 - Those who wish to take special oral examination must submit the following materials in addition to the designated documents.
 - Official score of TOEFL (TOEFL iBT, TOEFL iBT Home Edition)
 - Short thesis*
 - Academic grade
- *Short thesis regarding your motivation for applying to the department and the research content you would like to pursue in your master's course. Further details of the thesis will be announced later.
- Submit the grades at your home university etc. in the designated form. Further details of the submission of the grades will be announced later.
- Detailed information will be announced on the department website later. You will be also notified on the website if there are any additions or changes to this announcement.

Schedule of entrance examination (tentative)